

ECZEMA A FLESH FIRE

Those afflicted with Eczema know more than can be told of the suffering imposed by this "flesh fire." It usually begins with a slight redness of the skin, which gradually spreads, followed by blisters and pustules discharging a thin, sticky fluid that dries and scales off, leaving an inflamed surface, and at times the itching and burning are almost unbearable. While any part of the body is liable to be attacked, the hands, feet, back, arms, face and legs are the parts most often afflicted. The cause of Eczema is a too acid condition of the blood. The circulation becomes loaded with fiery, acid poisons that are forced through the glands and pores of the skin which set the flesh aflame. Since the cause of the disease is in the blood it is a waste of time to try to cure it with local applications; the cause must be removed before a cure can be effected. S. S. S. has no equal as a remedy for Eczema; it enters the blood and forces out the poison through the natural channels, and builds up the entire system. The skin becomes smooth and soft again, and the Eczema is cured. Cases that have persistently refused to be cured under the ordinary treatment yield to its purifying, cooling effect on the blood. TWO INSPECTORS WERE APPOINTED

Many Applications Were Received by the Board When it Met Yesterday—Frances E. Commyns and Jos. E. Maura Were Selected.

The first meeting of the new City Board of Health was held yesterday at the office of the city clerk, when many matters pertaining to the welfare of the city were discussed and acted upon. Those present were Mayor Bliss, ex-officio chairman, and Messrs. Reilly, Hays, Baars, Turner and Ingraham.

The matter in which the most interest centered was the selection of two applicants to fill the positions of sanitary inspectors. These positions have been held during the past two years by Messrs. Tuttle and Everett, they having succeeded Messrs. Menko and Walsh.

Mayor Bliss presided over the meeting and the names of the applicants were presented. They were Frances E. Commyns, Joseph E. Maura, Thos. Tuttle, Geo. L. Parker, F. R. Goulding, Jos. A. Bohe, L. J. Anderson, Fred. D. Abbott, John A. Campbell, Ed. Dittmars, John O'Donovan and Jas. M. Johnson.

Captain Hays, as City Health Officer, recommended that Messrs. Commyns and Maura be accepted. His recommendation was carried out and these two gentlemen will assume office at once. The two retiring inspectors will serve until the new ones are sworn into office, which will probably be to-day.

The Health Officer brought to the attention of the board the fact that more inspectors were needed to cover the entire city, especially from the present until about September. The city should be kept in the best sanitary condition possible, and he believed that, with two additional men, thorough and systematic work could be done. It was decided to ask for the appropriation necessary to employ two additional men.

A number of matters were then discussed by the board for the benefit of the health of the city. One of the matters under discussion was to prevent the spread of disease in the low districts of the city, by employing a physician to make weekly visits to those sections and see that all places were in good sanitary and health conditions. This matter could not be acted upon, however, until the opinion of the city attorney was received. Mayor Bliss and Chairman Hays will consult with him.

The board also talked informally over the matter of taking procedure against some of the low and disreputable dives that infest the city, which are a menace to health, but as this comes under the province of the police department no steps could be taken.

NEWS OF THE DREDGE CAUCUS

EXPECTED THAT SHE WILL BE COMPLETED AND MAKE HER TRIAL TRIP DURING THE COMING WEEK.

Regarding the accident to the United States dredge Causcus, which was built for Pensacola, and which recently went aground, while under command of Capt. H. Hienke, The New York Marine Journal, of recent date contains the following:

"Capt. H. Hienke, a licensed master and pilot was in charge of the unfortunate seagoing dredge Causcus, which stranded on the south side of Long Island, near Jones' Inlet, recently while on her way from Greenport, L. I., where she was built, to this port. Capt. F. M. Dunn, who will take charge of the Causcus after she is turned over to the government, was on board at the time, but simply as a passenger, having nothing to do with the vessel's navigation. The damage to this dredge was fortunately not serious. She lost about 90 feet of her keel and injured a portion of her keel, but was otherwise unharmed, which proves that she is a well-built vessel, as she had a pretty severe pounding before she was gotten off by the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking Company. A survey was held on the Causcus later when she came out in James Shewan & Son's drydock, and bids invited for repairing her, which contract was awarded to the Tietjen & Lang Dry Dock Company, Hoboken, who are to take her out the 21st and complete repairs by the 29th, after which she will make her official trial trip, and, if satisfactory, be accepted by the government."

Trees Shrink and Expand.
Perhaps it is more interesting than strictly useful to know that the diameter of trees not only varies from summer to winter, but from day to day. They are larger from noon until twilight next morning than from twilight to noon; they are smaller in winter than in summer. Low temperatures, as well as high, promote evaporation. The trees evaporate from their branches in winter, and so the colder the weather the more they shrink.

The Milky Way.
A gentleman one day in talking to several farm laborers on astronomy thought he could give the farm hands a poser. "Can you," he said, "tell me what made the Milky Way?" The farm hands studied a minute, and then one of them said: "Yes, I think I can. It was the cow that jumped over the moon."

Cheerfulness.
Cheerfulness is one of the universally understood attributes. It is accepted at its face value the world over. It is the gold coin of disposition. Indeed, it is such a large part of disposition that it would almost seem to constitute the whole of it.

We live longer than our forefathers, but we suffer more from a thousand artificial anxieties and cares.—Bulwer.

ANNUAL MEMORIAL OF THE ODD FELLOWS

Beautiful Memorial Exercises Over the Graves of Departed Brethren at St. John's Cemetery Sunday.

ELOQUENT ADDRESS BY HON. SCOTT M. LOFTIN

Delivered at the Odd Fellows Lot After Graves had been Decorated by Loving Hands—A Magnificent Tribute to Those who have Passed into the Great Beyond.

Memorial exercises over the graves of departed Odd Fellows were held at St. John's Cemetery Sunday, the impressive occasion being attended by a large concourse of people. At 3:30 p. m. Pensacola Lodge, No. 4, and Joppa Lodge, No. 5, I. O. O. F., with the Rebekah Lodge, left the I. O. O. F. hall and proceeded to the cemetery where all graves containing the remains of Odd Fellows were decorated with flowers and appropriate ritualistic ceremonies were held.

Grand Master A. C. Binkley acted as noble grand, Grand Representative Thos. C. Watson acted as Chaplain, and Past Grand Geo. Mayne acted as Marshal.

When the graves had been decorated, the Odd Fellows assembled at the I. O. O. F. lot where Hon. Scott M. Loftin, orator of the day, delivered one of the most eloquent addresses ever heard on a similar occasion in this city. Mr. Loftin spoke as follows:

Mr. Loftin's Oration.
Noble Grand, Brother Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, Ladies and Friends: On this beautiful Sabbath day, with bowed heads and loving hearts, we pause amid the changing scenes and busy activities of life to drop a tear of regret on the graves of our dear comrades, who, as time fleeth like the winged bird of the air, one after another have passed beyond our vision, but not out of our memory.

We have gathered here today to pay tribute of esteem to those Odd Fellows and Rebekahs who have "fought the good fight," and now lie peacefully resting beneath the sod. Their memories we cherish, and their good deeds are living monuments erected through their own efforts while they lived upon this earth. Each life carries its inspiration to humanity, and if there be any more significance in these memorial exercises than an indication of desire to pay respectful tribute to the memory of beloved associates, it must be in the fact that there are held up to view those human traits and qualities that inspire emulation. It is fitting that we should lay aside the ordinary transactions of life and remember the ennobling lessons we have learned from those who "no longer list to war's alarms, or pulsate with feeling when the pleasing notes of the harp strike the strings of perfect harmony." It is meet and proper in this hour, so fittingly dedicated for this purpose, that we should perpetuate the glories of those lives now ended, and place upon their graves garlands of flowers and tokens of love. They have gone, but they still live in the language of the poet:

They are not dead, these good men whom we mourn,
Though out of sight and hearing they have gone,
They live, removed from earthly care and ill,
With stronger, holier, power to bless us still.
We are members of an Order whose highest aim and purpose are to elevate mankind, and make the world brighter, better and happier. Our noble fraternity is founded upon the immortal principles of friendship, love and truth, and these cardinal virtues represent the grand motto of Odd-fellowship. During the brief sojourn of our members on this earth we earnestly strive to uplift them and all their lives with sunshine; when they are stricken with disease we seek to alleviate their suffering and make their last hours calm and peaceful; when the death angel calls them from worldly cares, we tenderly lay their bodies to rest, and once each year meet to pay tribute of love and respect to their memory. Is there one who will not join with me in saying that a man lives a better and nobler life in this world, and will have and enjoy a higher reward in the world to come, for having been an Odd Fellow and followed the teachings of our Order?

Philosophy has been defined to be the contemplation of death. Whether this be true or not, it is certain that all of man philosophizing about other things sinks into insignificance in the contemplation of the dread incomprehensibility. To what an exact equality of nothingness, when viewed from an earthly standpoint, does it bring us all—rich and poor, wise and foolish, great and obscure, studious and idle, virtuous and vicious, king and lackey, emperor and bootblack! At the end the ants have swarmed and fought, worked hard to store up for a winter's day, begotten their kind, died, and given away to other ants. The flies on the spokes of the wheel of the universe have gone round with the wheel, fondly imagining that they had something to do with the evolution, have some day unexpectedly dropped off, and other flies have taken their places. If it were all of life to live and all of death to die; if the race only were immortal and the individual sank, body and mind, into the grave, who could find a rational cause to prefer one course of life to another, except only to prefer pleasure to pain, and ease to labor.

The very fact that mankind does not and has never acted on that theory is proof that it is not and never will be believed that the body is the man, the tenement the tenant, or the destruction of the tenement the annihilation of the tenant; in a word, that body-death stops soul-growth. "There's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will." Life is a trail arch uniting two eternities—the unknown worlds—that from whence we come when life is vouchsafed to us and that to which we go when, in infinite wisdom, life is denied us. It is the day, begun in the sunshine of the glorious morning and ending in the melancholy shades of evening. It is the smile and the tear, the banquet hall and the silence of the tomb; alike a triumphant song and a mournful elegy.

In the brief time allotted for the pilgrimage between the eternities man writes the story of his life and records the evidence of the manner in which he has used the opportunities given him. He builds his own monument and writes upon it his own epitaph, giving the basis upon which the future must pronounce judgment as to his true worth and character. The record when once made must stand through all the ages, death's seal imparting to it absolute verity. Ardent friends may exaggerate the virtues and lessen the faults, but neither human kindness nor human malice can add to or subtract from the record for the making of which he alone is responsible.

One of the greatest of all poets said:
The evil that men do lives after them;
The good is oft interred with their bones.
A kinder philosophy would bury the bad deeds of man and give an endless immortality to his good ones. Our Order teaches that when we lay a departed brother to rest, we are to cherish a lively recollection of his virtues, and bury all his imperfections beneath the clod that rests upon his bosom; that real worth does not die, but lives on and on, a rich and ever-increasing legacy for all men for all times.

His day is come, not gone;
His sun has arisen, not set;
His life is now beyond
The reach of death or change,
Not ended, but begun.
It is a sweet thought—the thought of immortality—the belief that death is only the beginning of a brighter and more joyous life, the faith in the promise that those who keep His commandments shall meet again in the "house of many mansions." Such a kind philosophy dispels the gloom of the grave and brings a solace and an assurance to the broken hearted and despondent.

Sacred to us is this hallowed spot, for here is interred all that was mortal of those whom we loved. We should not think of them as dead. Life at the best is but a vapor that passeth away. The glories of our birth and state are shadows, not substantial things. But when death comes, what nobler epitaph can any man have than this, that having served his generation, by the will of God

On account of the educational situation by which, as a result of the law passed by the last legislature, the state institutions are consolidated into two colleges, the summer school at the Lake City University has been called off.

he fell asleep. Little can the living do for the dead. The pomp and ceremonies of earthly grandeur have lost their significance, but when our soul shall leave its dwelling, the story of all the escutcheons on our tombs or silken banners over us.

Our comrades have passed from among us, but we shall not forget that they were faithful to every trust, true to their convictions, sincere in every purpose, of noble Christian character, kind to their fellowmen, and loyal in their friendships for their brother Odd Fellows. They performed their tasks faithfully and have gone to their reward. The mystery of life and the mystery of death met and blasted into a transcendent light that brilliantly illuminated the pathway to that rest beneath the "shade of the trees" in the "heaven of eternal bliss."

They are gone, but when they departed they held the golden key That opens the palace of eternity; They are dead, but they ever liveth, They have but passed Beyond the mist that blinds us here, Into the newer and larger life, Of that serene sphere.

And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear, immortal spirits tread,
For all the boundless universe
Is life! There are no dead.

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scores of Pensacola Readers are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty. When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick. Backache and many kidney ills follow. Urinary trouble, diabetes, Doan's kidney pills cure them all. Pensacola people endorse our claim. Charles Wilson, living on West Romana street, brick mason by trade, says: "I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Sidney Kahn's drug store, No. 9 South Palafox street, and used them for a lame back and sharp twinges of pain which passed away when I stooped or made any sudden movement. I was surprised at the quickness with which I was relieved. Mrs. Wilson also suffered from her back and kidneys. She could hardly turn in bed and suffered from a dull aching pain in her loins. Just before taking Doan's Kidney Pills she was completely laid up. After taking a course of the treatment all symptoms of kidney trouble left her, and up to date there has been no recurrence. I strongly urge Pensacola people to use Doan's Kidney Pills if they suffer from their back or kidneys."
